and Related Cases.

-----oo0oo-----

1        These related cases all challenge the sufficiency of the 2 2004 Sierra Nevada Forest Plan Amendment ("the 2004 Framework").
3 Plaintiffs allege that in adopting the 2004 Framework, the 4 government violated various portions of the National 5 Environmental Policy Act, 42 U.S.C. § 4321, et seq. ("NEPA"), the 6 Administrative Procedure Act, 5 U.S.C. §§ 701-706 ("APA"), and 7 the National Forest Management Act, 16 U.S.C. § 1600, et seq.
8 ("NFMA").

9        Now before the Court are five different Motions to Intervene
10 brought on behalf of twenty-seven (27) different
11 groups/organizations seeking to assert their own particular 12 interests into this litigation so as to ensure that those 13 interests are heard. Three motions have been filed in Sierra
14 Nevada Forest Protection Campaign v. Rey, et al., Case No. CIV-S-15 05-0205, on behalf of the following: 1) Quincy Library Group and 16 Plumas County; 2) California Ski Industry Association; and 3)
17 Tuolumne County Alliance for Resources & Environment (TuCare), et 18 al.<sup>1</sup> In People of the State of California ex rel. Bill Lockyer
19 v. United States
20 Department of Agriculture, et al., Case No. CIV-S-05-0211, 21

22        <sup>1</sup>The other applicants for intervention, in addition to 23 TuCare, are California Forest Counties Schools Coalition,
24 Regional Council of Rural Counties, Western Council of Industrial 25 Workers, Klamath Alliance for Resources & Environment, Coarsegold
26 Resource Conservation District/Eastern Madera County Fire Safe
27 Council, Tulare County Resource Conservation District, Sierra
28 Resource Conservation District, Strawberry Property Owners'
Association, Huntington Lake Association, Huntington Lake Big Creek Historical Conservancy, California Equestrian Trails &
Lands Coalition, California Forestry Association, California
Licensed Foresters Association, California/Nevada Snowmobile
Association, American Forest & Paper Association, American Forest
Resource Council, and BlueRibbon Coalition.

1 motions have been submitted both on behalf of the TuCare group of 2 intervenors and by the California Cattlemen's Association.
3 Finally, in California Forestry Ass'n, et al. v. Dale N.
4 Bosworth, et al., Case No. CIV-S-05-0905, the Sierra Nevada
5 Forest Protection Campaign, Center for Biological Diversity, 6 National Resources Defense Council, Sierra Club, and The 7 Wilderness Society have collectively moved to intervene.

8 Under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 24,<sup>2</sup> a party may 9 intervene in pending litigation either as a matter of right,
10 under subsection (a), or permissively with the court's consent
11 under subsection (b).

12 An applicant has the right to intervene under Rule 24(a) if 13 1) the intervention request is made in a timely fashion; 2) a 14 "significantly protectable" interest related to the subject 15 matter of the litigation is asserted; 3) disposition of the 16 matter may impair or impede the applicant's interest in the 17 absence of intervention; and 4) if the applicant's interest is 18 not adequately represented by existing parties. Wetlands Action
19 Network v. United States Army Corps of Eng'rs, 222 F.3d 1105,
20 1113-14 (9th Cir. 2000). Private parties may not, however,
21 intervene as a matter of right in an action alleging NEPA
22 violations on grounds that such parties do not have the requisite
23 significantly protectable interest in NEPA compliance actions.
24 Kootenai Tribe of Idaho v. Veneman, 313 F.3d 1094, 1108 (9th Cir.
25 2004). Because the parties seeking to intervene in the cases 26 presently before this Court are largely private parties, and

28 <sup>2</sup>All further references to "Rule" or "Rules" are to the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

1 given the fact that many of the claims sought to be asserted do
2 implicate NEPA, intervention as a matter of right appears
3 inappropriate in this instance.

4 Permissive intervention under Rule 24(b), however, "plainly
5 dispenses with any requirement that the intervenor shall have a 6 direct personal or pecuniary interest in the subject of the 7 litigation." SEC v. U.S. Realty & Improvement Co., 310 U.S. 434,
8 459 (1940). Consequently permissive intervention may be allowed
9 here even in the face of allegations sounding under NEPA.

10 An applicant seeking permissive intervention must satisfy
11 three threshold requirements: 1) the motion must be timely; 2)
12 the court must have an independent basis for jurisdiction over 13 the applicant's claims; and 3) the intervenor's interests must 14 share a common question of law or fact with the main action.
15 Donnelly v. Glickman, 159 F.3d 405, 412 (9th Cir. 1998). The 16 district court has broad discretion to grant permissive
17 intervention if these factors are met. See Spangler v. Pasadena
18 City Board of Educ., 552 F.2d 1326, 1329 (9th Cir. 1977).

19 While several parties have filed responses to the 20 intervention requests now before the Court, no one argues that 21 the threshold requirements for permissive intervention have not 22 been satisfied. These cases were only recently filed and there
23 is no dispute that intervention has been sought on a timely
24 basis. Similarly, because the interests advanced by the proposed 25 intervenors all relate to the same 2004 Framework at issue in the 26 main action, and because the same jurisdictional bases apply, the 27 remaining prerequisites (common issues and independent 28 jurisdictional grounds) are also met.

1 In exercising its discretion to allow permissive
2 intervention, the Court finds that the 2004 Framework impacts
3 large and varied interests, including those advanced by the 4 proposed intervenors. The potential magnitude of the 2004
5 Framework is great, and the implications flowing from any 6 challenge to it may be considerable. Ensuring that all competing 7 interests implicated by the Framework are heard, including those 8 advanced by proposed intervenors herein, will contribute to the 9 just and equitable resolution of these cases. Consequently 10 permissive intervention will be allowed, and the motions
11 presently before the Court are granted.<sup>3</sup>

12 In permitting such intervention, however, the Court must 13 still consider "whether the intervention will unduly delay or 14 prejudice the adjudication of the rights of the original 15 parties." Fed. R. Civ. P. 24(b)(2). This inquiry has been the 16 primary focus of the original parties to this litigation in 17 response to these motions. Those parties contend that without 18 briefing limitations, the presence of multiple intervenors in 19 this matter may prove logistically impracticable, both in terms
20 of the parties' response to numerous briefs and the Court's 21 burden in considering the voluminous papers that may be filed in 22 response to anticipated motions for summary judgment. In that 23 regard, the court may impose reasonable conditions and 24 restrictions on the participation of intervenors so that their 25 involvement does not derail the efficient conduct of these

1 proceedings. See Stringfellow v. Concerned Neighbors in Action,
2 480 U.S. 370, 380 (1987).

3 The Court will consequently impose limits on the briefing
4 allowed in any summary judgment motion filed in these related 5 cases. Opening points and authorities will be limited to fifty 6 (50) pages in length. Opposition papers are subject to a thirty 7 (30) page limitation, and reply memoranda shall not exceed (10)
8 pages. Any brief filed on behalf of any intervenor, or group of 9 intervenors represented by single counsel, shall not be longer
10 than twenty (20) pages.
